Who We Are

Midwest Independent Rehab Association is a group of privately owned, outpatient physical therapy clinics. Our goal is to work for the health and stability of the private practice and its stakeholders. By coordinating our efforts as one body, rather than separate entities, privately owned physical therapy clinics will have a strong future in health care in the Midwest. In the end, MIRA will allow private physical therapy clinics to best serve their patients, employees and the communities in which they reside.

What We Do

MIRA strives to educate the community about the benefits of privately owned physical therapy clinics. The association gives each practice the opportunity to share ideas for the health of private practices within the organization.

Midwest Independent Rehab Association provides an avenue for all owners to maintain the status and growth of their businesses. MIRA uses objective data to determine the strengths and weaknesses of their clinicians.

How We Do It

Each member clinic uses FOTO, a functional outcome database. This software provides objective data to prove the value of therapy to both patients and the healthcare community. The results provided by FOTO allows each clinic to capitalize on their strengths and improve any weaknesses. With this software, the members of MIRA will be able to provide their patients and referring physicians with better healthcare management and communication regarding their treatments.
